THE - SPIRIT - OF - AMES - HIGH

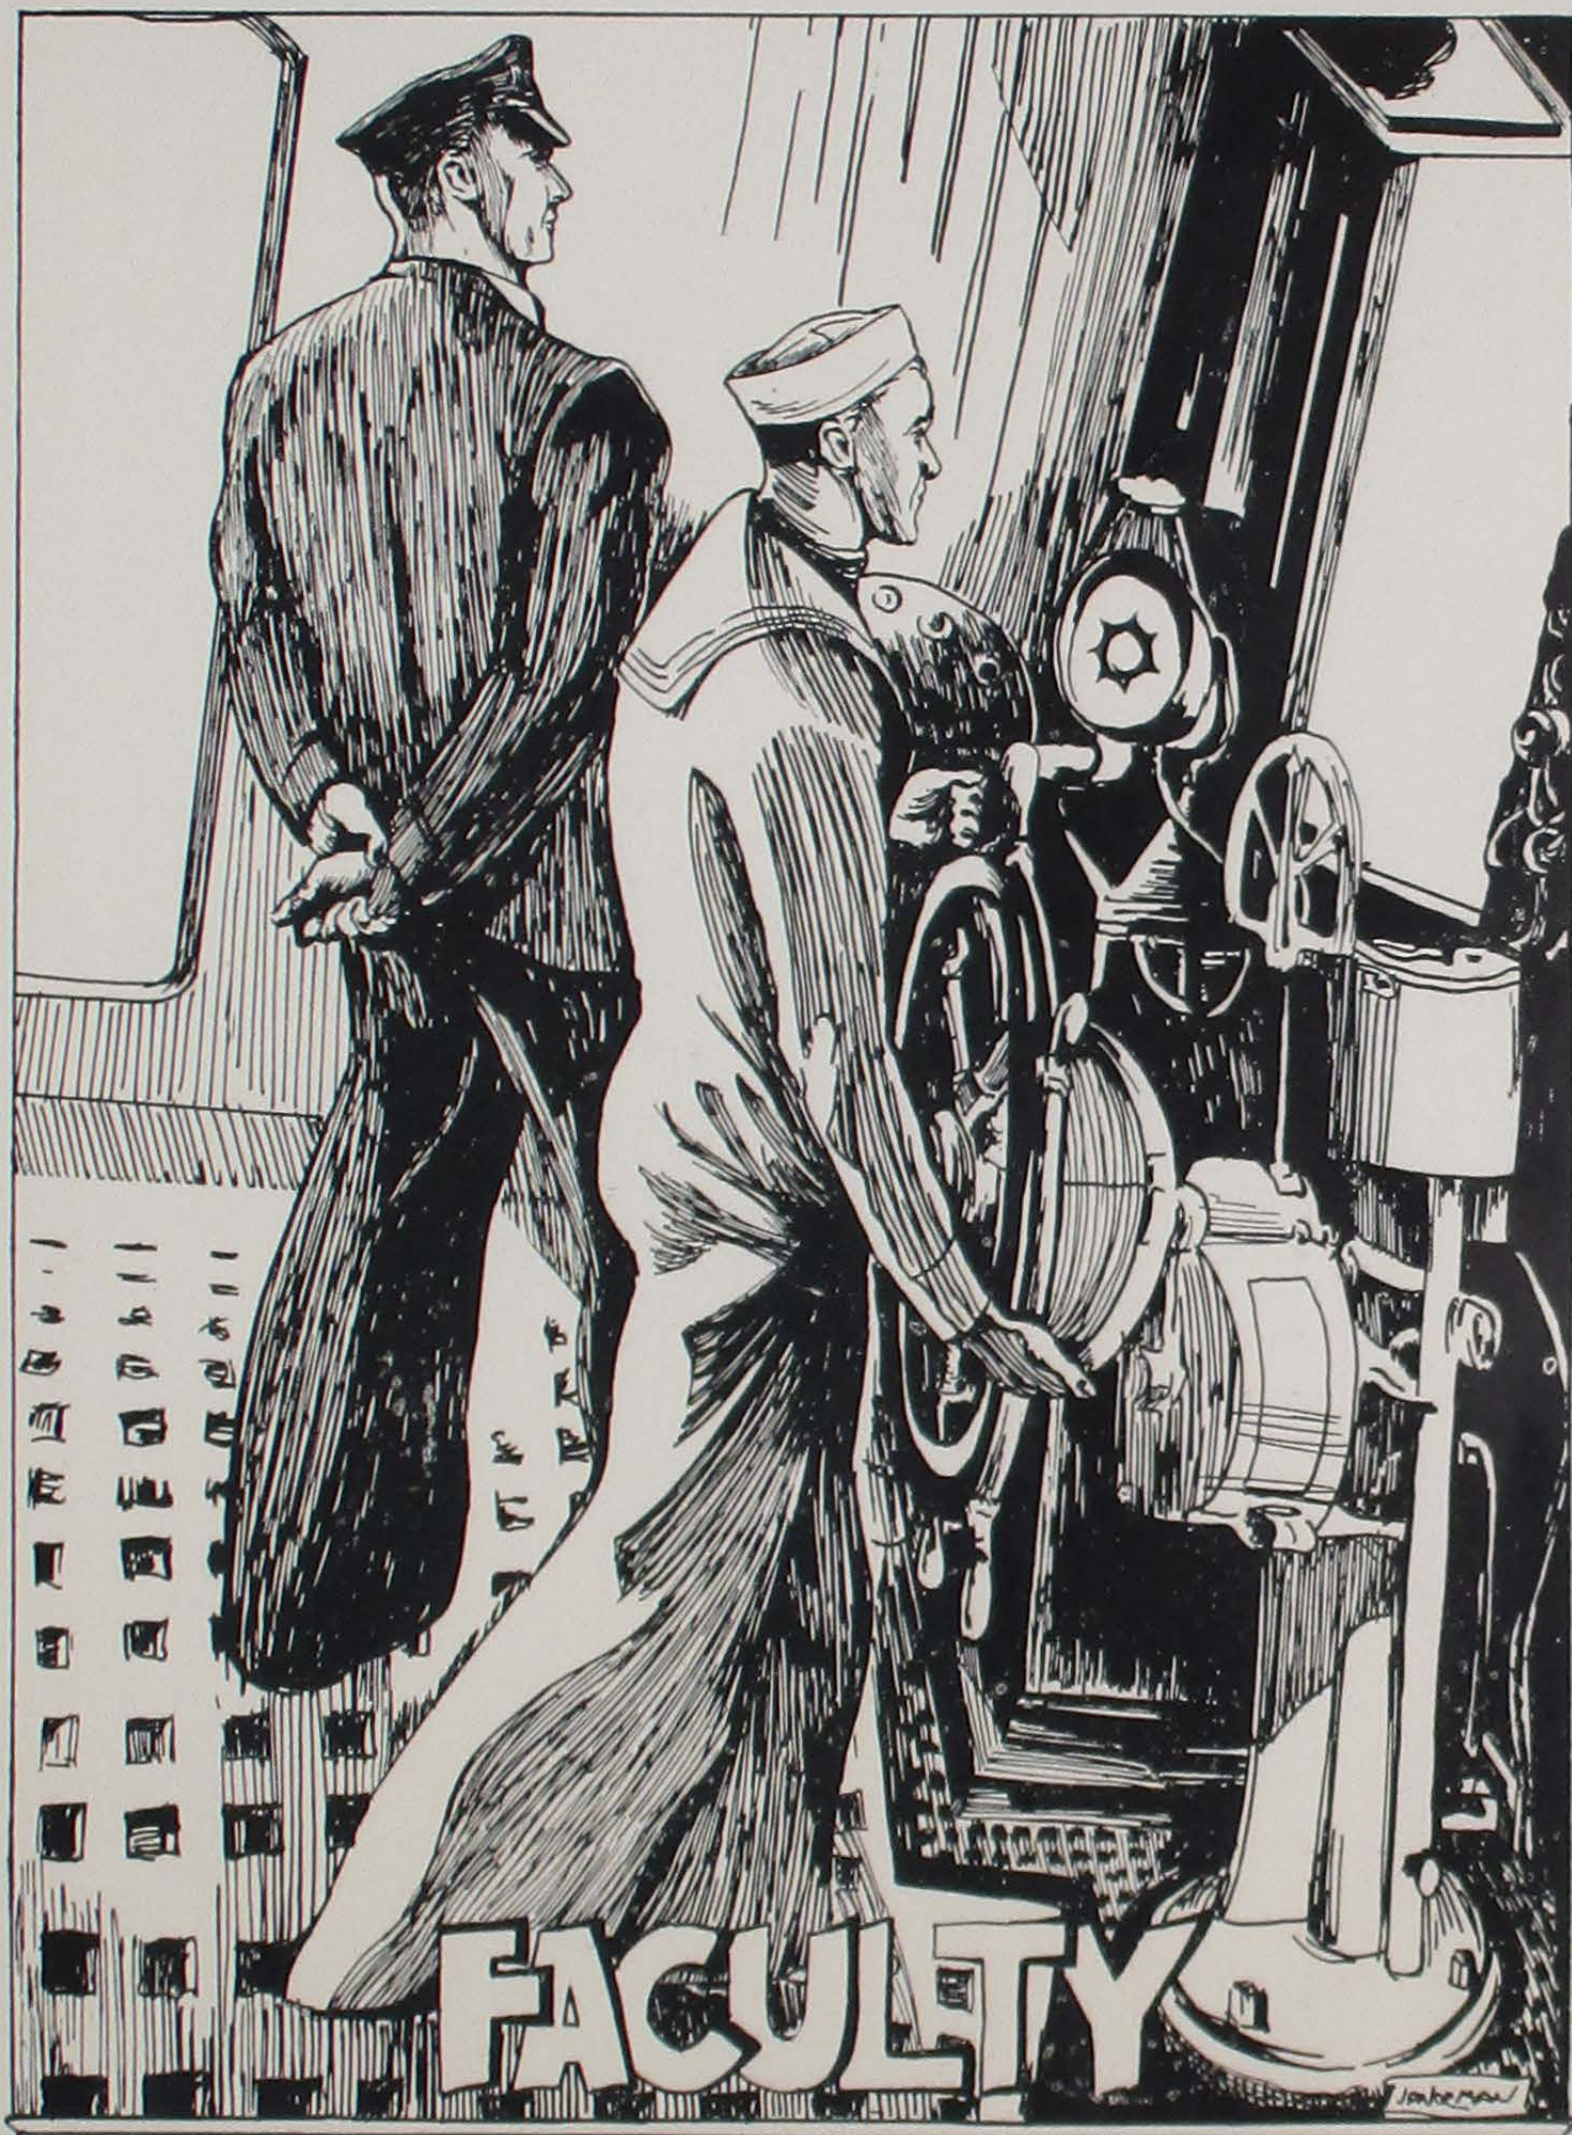

FOREWORD

That this Spirit of 1934 may, in the years to come, recall memories of Ames High activities, we have attempted to portray the work, organizations, associations, friendships and inspiration which constitute the student's life through high school, as one of the many short voyages on the high seas which make up the great voyage of life.

Senior Class History

OUT from the Junior High dry dock, through the Sophomore shallows, and past the Junior storms has the good ship "Class of '34" proceeded on its way, bearing a crew of more than one hundred forty on toward the object of the voyage, the shore of graduation.

Although proud of its achievements both individual and collective, this year's crew claims no other distinction than being an average class of Ames High School, honor enough in itself.

For Junior officers the class selected Zac Dunlap, Mary Janet MacDonald, Richard Roupe, and Nadine Hanson—president, vice-president, secretary, and treasurer, respectively. The Senior leaders are Nadine Hanson, Robert Werkman, Richard Roupe, and Katherine Kelleher. Misses Neil and Wood were class advisers for the Junior year, and Misses Spatz and White acted in a like capacity during the Senior year.

The class presented "The Charm School" for its Junior play and a double cast presented the Senior play.

June approaches and another voyage in Ames High history is ended.

ROBERT BLISS.

The Junior Class History

THE Juniors have sailed a steady, even course into midseas and soon will be reaching their port.

During their first year on high seas it took them a surprisingly short time to get accustomed to the routine and duties on the ship where they were outstanding in many ways.

The past year has been an eventful one for the Junior passengers. After some weeks they chose Jack Chase as captain, George O'Neil as first mate, and Dorothy Reynolds as purser. With these worthy officers at the helm, responsibilities concerning student government, social, citizenship, and service problems have been satisfactorily accomplished.

The names of many second year seamen excelling in studies were found on the ship's log every six weeks. The Junior sailors have also done much in helping to entertain the passengers on the liner. They have several officers in the dramatic club and were represented in the dramatic club play "Mignonette." In many of the interesting debates that were held, some of these sailors were allowed to argue.

There have been numerous musical entertainments on board the vessel and stops were made at various ports to present programs. The girls' glee club gave a Christmas program over the wireless. Many of the Junior musicians showed their ability either by singing, or playing musical instruments.

Athletics were an outstanding amusement for the passengers and some of the Junior mariners were active in the football, basketball, and tennis games, while the remaining passengers provided the pep. Girls participated in G. A. A., inter-class basketball and volleyball games, and Pep Club.

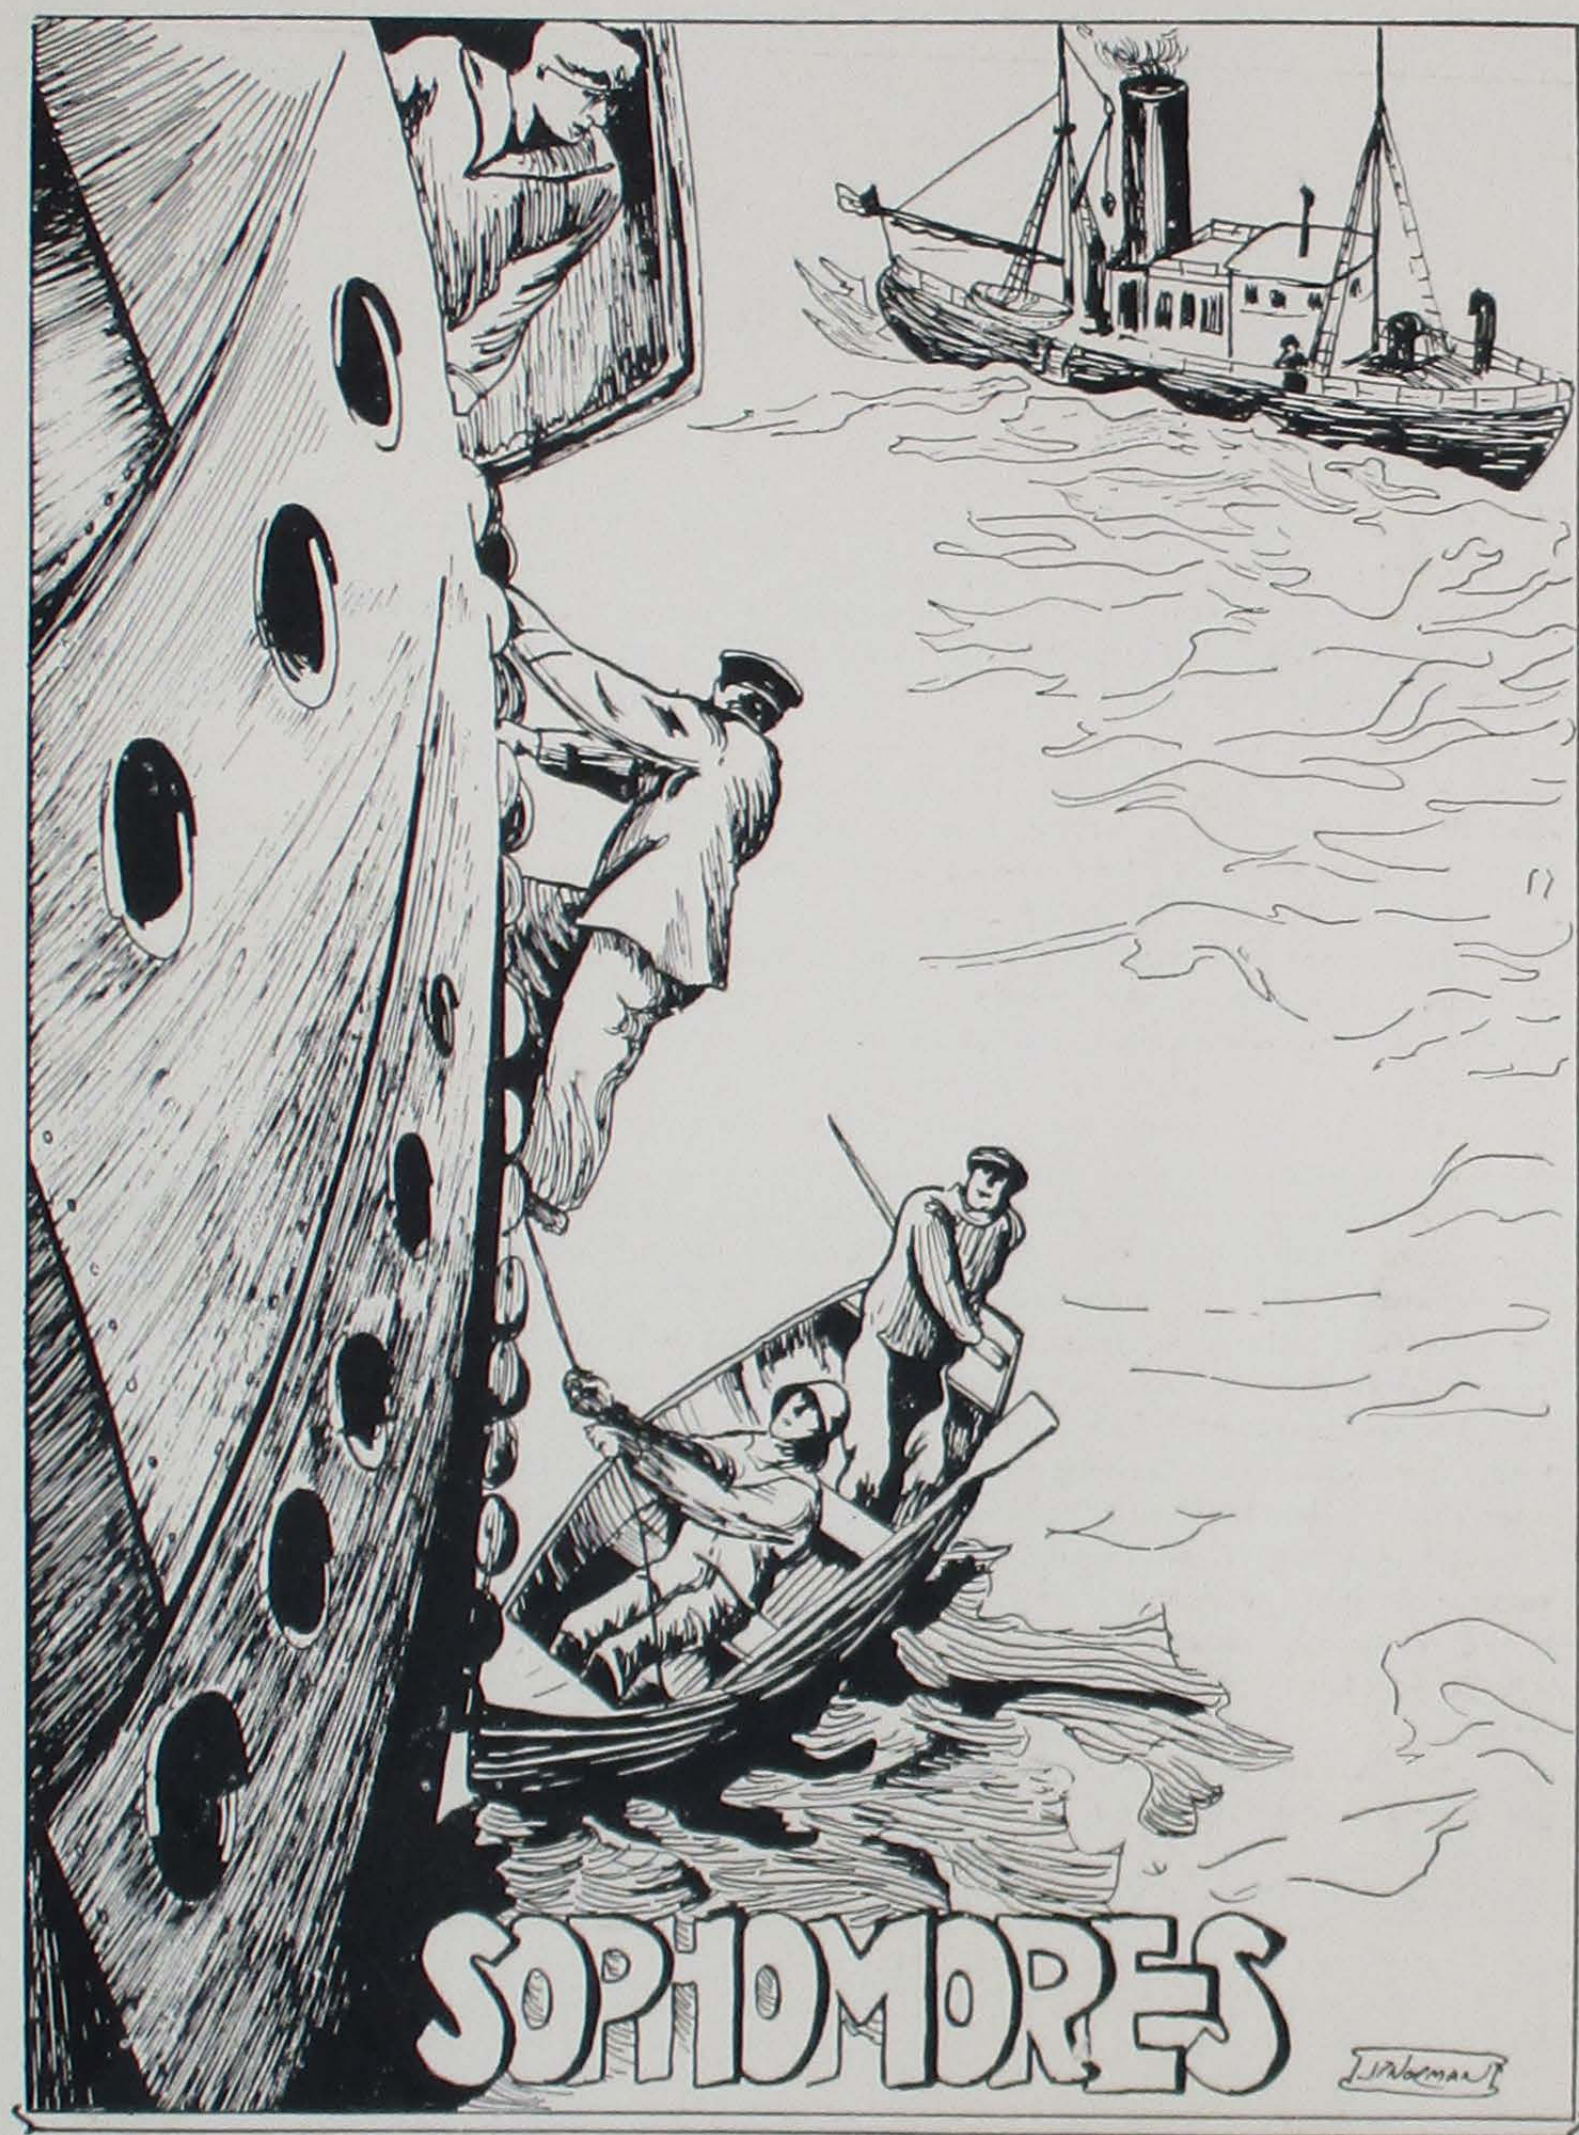

All passengers belonged either to Girl Reserve or Hi-Y. The help and inspiration they received from this is not to be forgotten.

Everybody aboard the ship was especially entertained on January 12, when the Junior seamen presented their annual play, "The Youngest," coached by Mrs. Gaunt.

The Junior class owes its pleasant voyage to the cooperation of its members and to the helpful leadership of its officers and sponsors, Miss Hadish and Miss Selby.

Sophomore Class History

WITH sails billowing as the breeze caught and filled them, their ship sailed slowly out of the harbor of registration and on into the open sea of Ames High School.

Thus the Class of '36 set out on a three-year voyage on September 11, 1933.

The days which followed were trying ones for all on board. The crew was inexperienced, and once the ship nearly floundered on Geometry Shoals. Then again, a storm struck her and for a moment it seemed that everyone would surely be either drowned—or which was far worse—be stranded on the terrible island of Latin! Good fortune was with the young adventurers, however, for these and many other dangers were passed in safety.

Awards were given to many seamen who distinguished themselves in athletics.

A large number of the crew went out for other activities—dramatics, music, Hi-Y, and Girl Reserve work.

The ship had been well manned during the year 1933-34, and as a reward practically every seaman on board was promoted to the rank of junior, and, as a special bonus, all hands were granted a three months' shore leave.

Thus ended the first leg of the voyage and consequently the history of the Class of '36 as Sophomores. Two more years of hard sailing, however, lie between them and their goal, the Port of Graduation; may good fortune accompany them for the remainder of the voyage.

THE Student Council, the governing body of Ames High, is composed of the presidents of each of the home rooms. These representatives make known the suggestions and desires of the members of their home rooms and in this way help to solve the problems of the school. The meetings which are held once a week are presided over by the president and supervised by Miss Grace Curtis.

Through a very well-organized plan of elections, there are always some experienced members in the Council. The sophomores select their representatives in September, to serve until January, at which time they elect for the succeeding two semesters. In the mid-junior year, delegates are elected for the term from January to June. Then the juniors elect persons to serve all during the senior year.

To this capable body of eighteen members is entrusted the task of keeping "Ames Hi's Aims High."

THE meeting has come to order," though sometimes the order is very noisy for a supposed-to-be dignified senate.

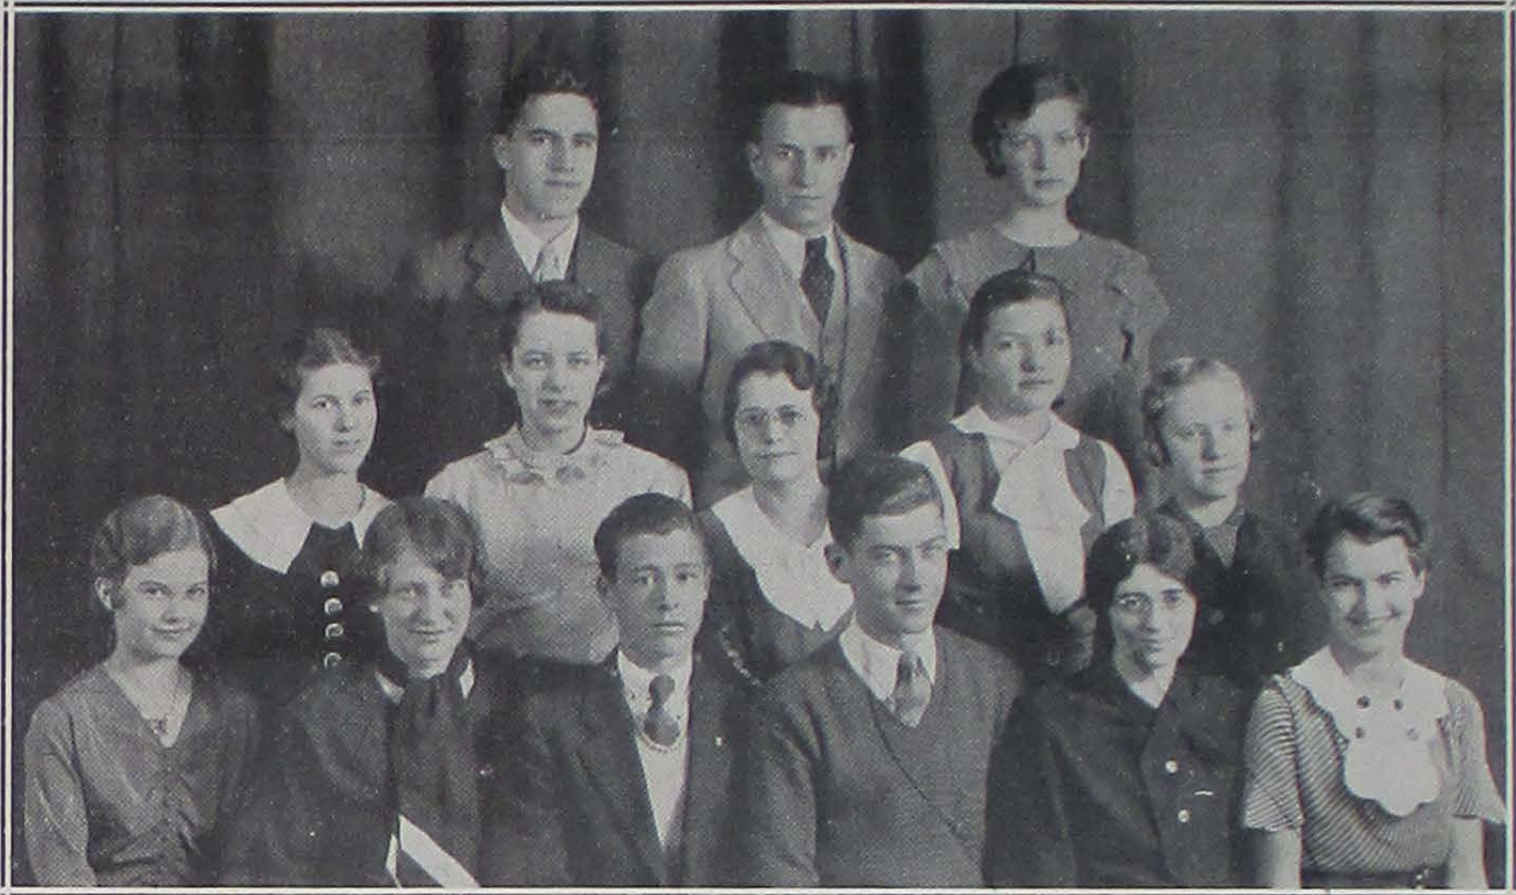

In Miss Spatz' room, usually on every Tuesday night, the Senior Senate holds session to discuss the numerous problems which confront the senior class.

The senior affairs are entrusted in a group consisting of class officers, senior home room presidents, and one representative from each senior home room.

The Senate decides with the class such matters as class flower, colors, motto, assembly, and appoints committees to make plans for commencement exercises, and, although it is composed of comparatively few members, it tries to express the views of the whole class.

National Honor Society

PRESIDENT	GEORGE ARNOLD
VICE PRESIDENT	BETH CUMMINGS
SECRETARY	MISS SPATZ
TREASURER	ELMER SORENSON

THE National Honor Society is an organization united and bonded together by ideals of high scholastic attainment, leadership, character development, and willing service.

Members are selected twice a year. Fifteen per cent of each class is allowed membership, five per cent at the end of the junior year, and five per cent at the close of each semester during the senior year.

The society has carried on its activities this year with the monthly pot-luck suppers, business meetings, and also by presenting an interesting playlet in the assembly. At our business meetings the discussions centered around current problems in regard to our activities, higher scholastic achievement, and development of character.

We, as a national group, are united and have set up standards for the best, which we pass on to the succeeding members, trusting that they will keep our torch flaming and hold it high where all may see and benefit by its light.

Quill and Scroll

PRESIDENT	GEORGE ARNOLD
VICE PRESIDENT	PHILIP NORMAN
SECRETARY	MIRIAM MOSES

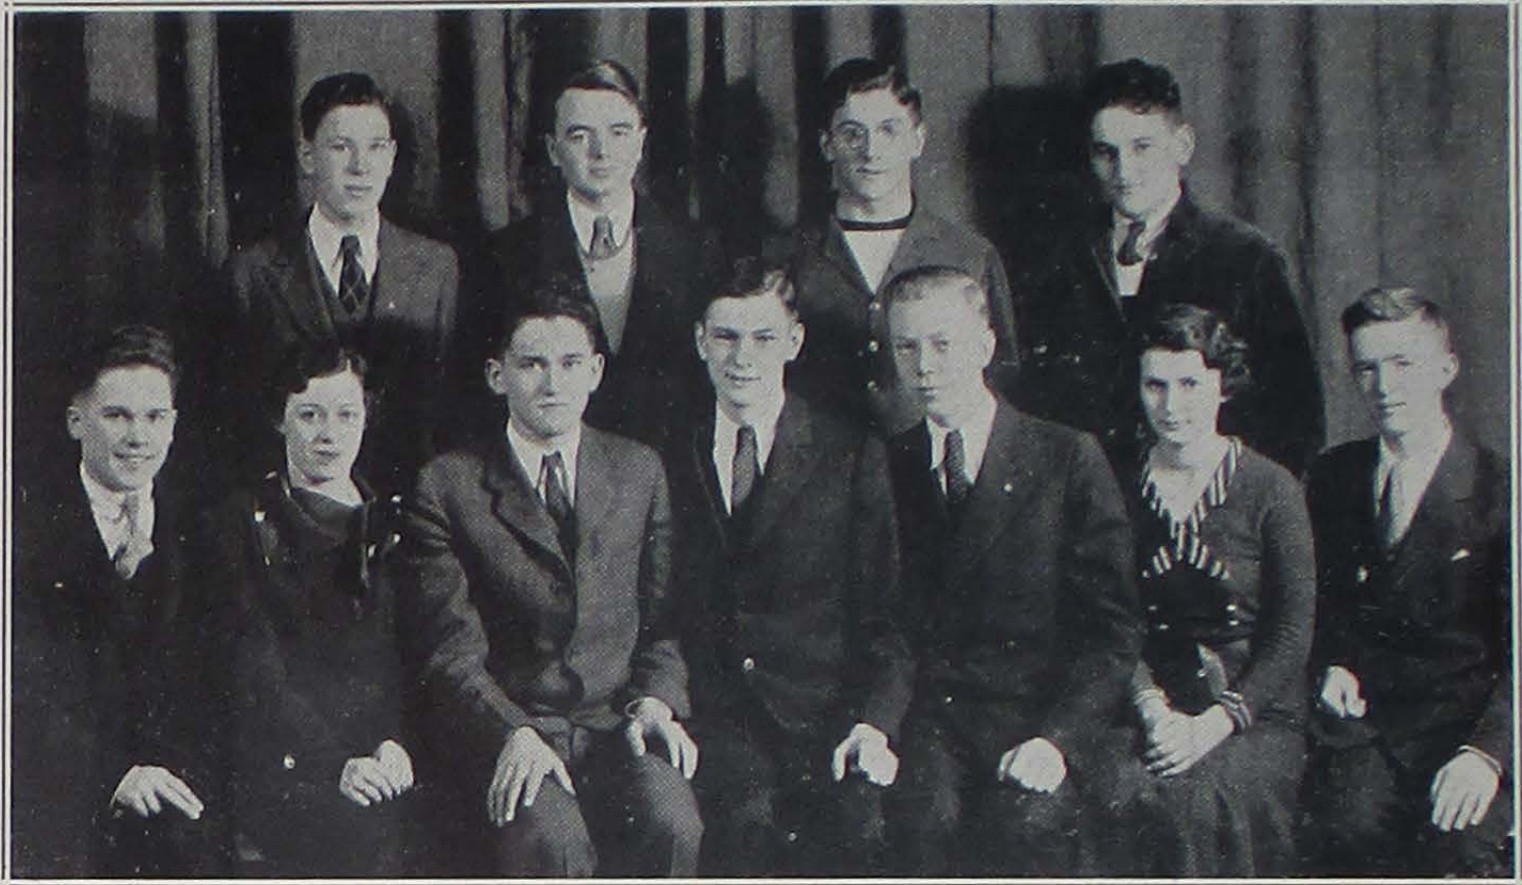

QUILL and Scroll, international honorary society for high school journalists, is the goal of every ambitious writer on the Web or Spirit staff. To be elected to membership a student must be of at least junior standing and in the upper one-third of his class scholastically; he must be recommended by his supervisor as having done outstanding work in some phase of journalism; and he must have an example of his work accepted by the national secretary-treasurer.

The Ames chapter of Quill and Scroll was organized in 1928, two years after the national society was organized at Iowa City by a group of journalism instructors interested in improving the standards of high school annuals, papers, and magazines. Through the medium of the Quill and Scroll Magazine new ideas and improvements in school publications are exchanged among the more than 800 chapters located in all parts of the United States and foreign countries.

Various contests in different fields of creative work are sponsored by the organization with the purpose of encouraging and rewarding individual efforts in journalism and allied fields. In these contests the Ames chapter has taken an active part this year.

National Forensic League

PRESIDENT	ROBERT RICHEY
VICE PRESIDENT	ROBERT BLISS
SECRETARY-TREASURER	PAUL DUTICH

NATIONAL Forensic League is an honorary organization which rewards effort in the following types of speech work: declamatory, debate, and extemporaneous.

In order to provide a constant incentive for further forensic effort even after membership has been earned, there are four degrees of attainment which may be gained: the Degree of Merit for 10 points, the Degree of Honor for 30 points, the Degree of Excellence for 60 points, and the Degree of Distinction for 100 points. Norman Severson and Robert Richey have the Degree of Distinction, and Paul Dutich has the Degree of Excellence.

The key, which is the pin of the club, is jewelled according to the degree held—an emerald for Honor, sapphire for Excellence, and ruby for Distinction.

National Thespians

TO National Thespians, a dramatic honorary society, are elected students who have shown marked ability in dramatics. The purpose of the organization is to stimulate better dramatic work in high school.

Five dramatic club members who have the highest number of points are elected to this club each semester. Points are earned by participation in three-act plays, one-act plays, tournament plays, and assisting in the presentation of any one of these. Many of the alumni attend the meetings which are held the second Wednesday of each month, and the reward to every dramatic student for his faithful and deserving work is admittance into this honorary organization.

GIRL RESERVES

PRESIDENT	MARY ABBOTT
VICE PRESIDENT	SARA FOSTER
SECRETARY	VIRGINIA AKIN
TREASURER	NORMA VAN SCOY

THE Girl Reserves started out the year on their search for the better and nobler things of life with the theme, "The Ideal Girl."

As an effort to encourage friendliness the girls in the high school drew the names of ninth grade girls for their "little pals" whom it was their duty to befriend in order to make their way as smooth as possible.

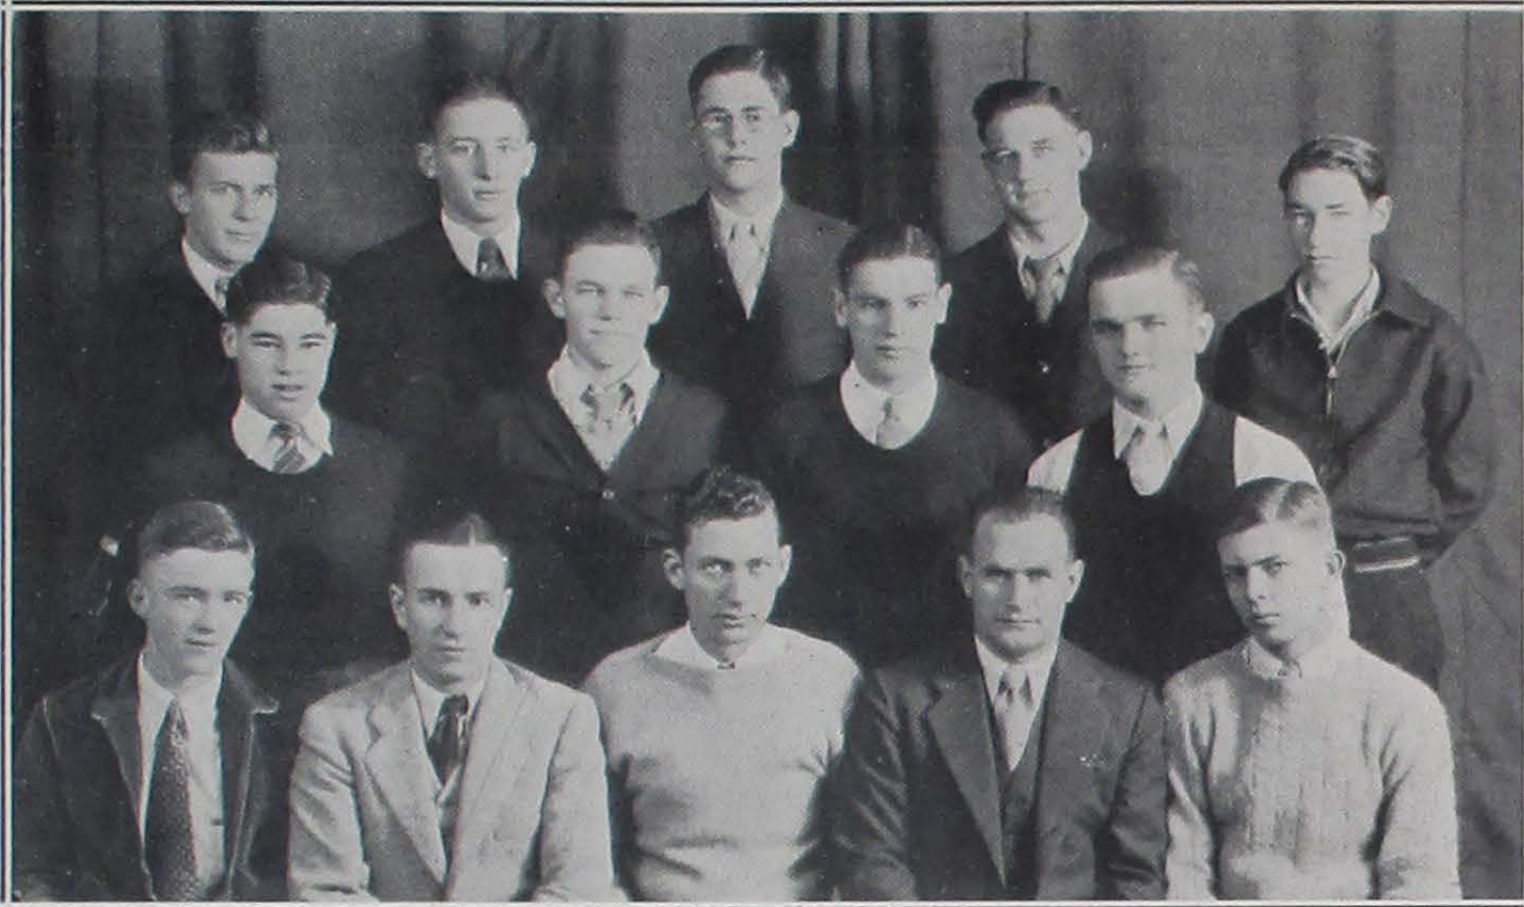

At Thanksgiving baskets of food were sent by the Girl Reserves and Hi-Y to twenty-five needy families, and at Christmas time a party for the less fortunate children was given.

The Girl Reserves and Hi-Y Friendship Week in which Reverend Nightingale, President Hughes, and Reverend Stolen addressed the students, and the Mother-Daughter Tea held during the week constituted the most important part of the year's program.

PAUL JONES	PRESIDENT	NORMAN DUNLAP
NORMAN DUNLAP	VICE PRESIDENT	WILLIAM BLISS
ZAC DUNLAP	SECRETARY	ROBERT CRAIG
RICHARD ROUPE	TREASURER	ELLSWORTH JONES

THE Ames Hi-Y, the largest in the state, is one of the most valuable extra-curricular activities in the Ames High School. The meetings, planned by a cabinet of twelve boys, are held every other week. The business men of Ames and the professors from Iowa State College contribute a great deal to the club by their worthwhile talks.

At Thanksgiving and at Christmas the Hi-Y cooperated with the Girl Reserves in contributing many baskets of food to the Ames Social Service League for distribution to the less fortunate. During the summer twelve boys represented the club at the Des Moines Y. M. C. A. camp, and last fall fifteen boys attended the state's Older Boys' Conference, which was held in Cedar Rapids. Our club has won a good reputation throughout the state because it has been successful in creating, maintaining, and extending throughout the school and community high standards of Christian character.

Web Staff

THE whistle blew! The Web for 1933-34 had made another touchdown; but not without skillful playing. The team, editor, business manager, advertising manager, news editor, and many assistants, coached by Miss Grace Curtis and supported on the sidelines by the entire school, had many difficulties to overcome—lack of news, indifference among students, finances, and inexperience. However, with splendid team work and those needed cheers, the Web was more peppy and interesting than ever, filled with news of coming events, humor, sports, gossip, activities, and numerous other articles.

Representatives from both the Web and Spirit staffs were sent to the National Scholastic Press Association convention at Chicago, and the Iowa High School Press Association convention at Des Moines.

The greatest honor for the students having shown unusual ability was membership in the National Quill and Scroll.

IN the Debate Club this year the competition for positions on the first team was keen, and several non-decision debates with other schools were held before a team was chosen.

Early in December the Ames club was host to teams from about fifteen other schools throughout western and central Iowa, who gathered for the annual non-decision tournament. Ames debaters attended a similar meeting in Fort Dodge earlier in the season.

For the second time in as many years, an Ames team tied for first place in the Central Iowa Forensic League. The position was gained by virtue of two decisions over Lincoln High of Des Moines and one each from Roosevelt and North. However, each of the latter schools managed to win one decision from the Ames team.

But this was only the beginning of the season. The team then settled down to intensive work for the Drake tournament and State League finals which climaxed the season.

Dramatic Club

THE Dramatic Club has drawn the curtains on another successful year. The club of almost one hundred members has produced two three-act plays, occasionally sponsoring a program over WOI, and frequently presenting one-act plays. The three-act plays and the one-act plays were very successful, maintaining and enlarging upon the splendid reputation of our popular and capable sponsor, Mrs. Ferne Gaunt.

Not only has the club been active at home, but also in state intramural competition, presenting a drama in the state contest at Iowa City, and one at the Drake contest in Des Moines.

Probably the greatest incentive for the displayed enthusiasm on the part of the members is our excellent point system, and the goal toward which each member strives is the well-known dramatic honorary society of National Thespians.

TREASURER	HELEN MARTIN

THE first semester the advanced art club members worked on the projects in which they were most interested, but a course of study of face proportion was completed by the primary art group. The parts of the face—nose, mouth, eyes, and ears—were drawn from printed copies and the different kinds of shading were done. Near the close of the semester each member attempted to draw a picture of a face in some newspaper or magazine, and made sketches using different art students as models.

Gothic and Roman lettering were the interest of the advanced members during the first few weeks of the second semester, and when this was completed they made monogrammed book-ends and ornaments for purses, which were very attractive.

MIXED Chorus is perhaps the most idealistic organization in Ames High. The fact that it is visited regularly by old members who exhibit a keen interest in its work testifies that its inspirational value is indeed high. Not only does it provide an emotional outlet in the present, but continues to make its power felt in after years when it is only a memory to those students who have graduated.

It would be hard to imagine anything more uplifting than interpreting the works of the great masters: Bach, Beethoven, Sibelius. In the pages of their superb masterpieces members of the chorus find a common interest and a common heritage.

Numerous programs are given by the Mixed Chorus during the year, and its work is climaxed by the state contest at Iowa City in the spring. Future choruses have a goal to achieve and a record to uphold in the standard set for them by their predecessors.

THE Ames High School's Girls' Glee Club, with its thirty-seven members, has completed another year filled with work and play.

The first part of the year was devoted to becoming familiar with glee club music and making friends among the members. Combined with the grade schools and the junior and senior high vocal groups the Christmas story in song was presented at the field house.

The second semester the senior high glee clubs and chorus presented a musical, and the remaining time the Girls' Glee Club spent in preparation for the state music contest, the winning of which is the aim of the organization.

Each member of the glee club will agree that again Miss Bower has given something to the organization which cannot be found elsewhere.

VICE PRESIDENT	CLAUDE SMITH
SECRETARY	HOWARD CARTER
LIBRARIAN	BILLY HORN

DUE to the interest and enthusiasm exhibited by the twenty-five members of the Boys' Glee Club, their second season, under the direction of Miss Edna Bower, can be termed a benefit, not only to the members, but to the great number of people who listened to their programs at various times.

Two meetings a week enabled the Glee Club to prepare a Christmas program, selections for the city and county music festivals, a black-faced minstrel, and various other programs either by the entire club or by select groups. For the first time this club entered the state music contest sponsored each year by the State University of Iowa.

This club has provided a valuable opportunity not only for students to discover and develop their vocal talents, but also to show them how to discriminate in their selection of musical entertainment.

Orchestra

PRESIDENT	MAX WATERMAN
SECRETARY	FREDERICK SCHNEIDER
LIBRARIAN	HAROLD NEWHOUSE

ALTHOUGH the Ames High Orchestra did not appear in public during the first semester, the time was well spent in finding suitable music to play and preparing for the City Music Festival.

This year Mr. Day organized a violin quartet consisting of Frederick Schneider, Max Waterman, Barbara Churchill, and Juanita Cox.

As usual the orchestra made its annual debut appearing on an assembly program which was appreciated by all that heard it. In addition, it played for the baccalaureate and commencement exercises and was also represented at the County Music Festival.

As half the members of the orchestra were new this year, it failed to become noticeably active in school activities, but within the group it was felt that marked development had been made considering the limited instrumentation.

LIFE, pep, and activity characterized the band this year. Besides playing at all the home basketball and football games, the County Basketball Tournament, and making trips to Boone and Marshalltown to support the team, it led two football pep parades through the business district, a new feature in Ames High activity.

In previous years the band has entered the State Music contest in the marching band division. This year for the first time it entered the concert division. There were only six letter men back this year: Ruth Sawin, Robert Bliss, George Arnold, Melvin Levine, Arthur Rudnick, and Robert Adams, but all worked under the leadership of Mr. Day to close a successful season.

"MIGNONETTE," written by Arthur Jearue, was presented at the Public Schools' field house, November 18, 1933, and proved to be an outstanding success. The story was southern in setting, the acting unusually fine and set off by beautiful costumes.

The plot, quaintly romantic, used Thomas Mills to part Mignonette and her lover, Jonathan Mills, but reunited them in death. After the death of Jonathan, her guardian, Rose was free to marry the man of her choice, Justin Holliday. The dual role was excellently portrayed by Jane Clement, and this production, as had its sister play, "Smilin' Thru," proved to be one of the most spectacular performances ever presented by the Ames High Dramatic Club.

ON January 12, the Junior Class presented a hilarious, fast-breaking, three-act comedy at the field house.

"The Youngest" concerns the trials and tribulations of Richard Winslow, the brow-beaten youngest member of a large family. His life is a terror until Nancy Blake, a young society debutante, comes to the Winslow's and tricks everybody, Richard included, into giving him his right of self-assertion.

"The Youngest" afforded the majority of the cast their stage debuts, and the story was so typical of every normal family that each one in the enthusiastic audience which witnessed the production—especially "The Youngests"—found something with which they were in common ground.

UNDER the capable leadership of "Sister" MacDonald and Miss Elizabeth Sherbon, the Pep Club has had a highly successful year. With a membership of eighteen seniors, twelve juniors, and six sophomores, the aim of the club is to promote school spirit throughout Ames High and enthusiasm at the games.

Divided into three groups, each officer having charge of a group, features were presented between halves at the football and basketball games.

The 1933-'34 Pep Club extends to future Pep Clubs its good wishes for highly successful years, hoping that all will remember that the biggest qualification for membership is good sportsmanship. The sight of these thirty-six "peppy" girls in their orange and black jackets which they wear on Fridays and at the games has become a tradition.

Long may they live!

SECRETARY-TREASURER	KENNETH BATMAN
HISTORIAN	ROBERT DUCKWORTH

AMID the thwacking of many paddles, the reading of oaths, and other initiation ceremonies, the Varsity Club, Ames High's honorary athletic organization, added nine new names to its roster this year.

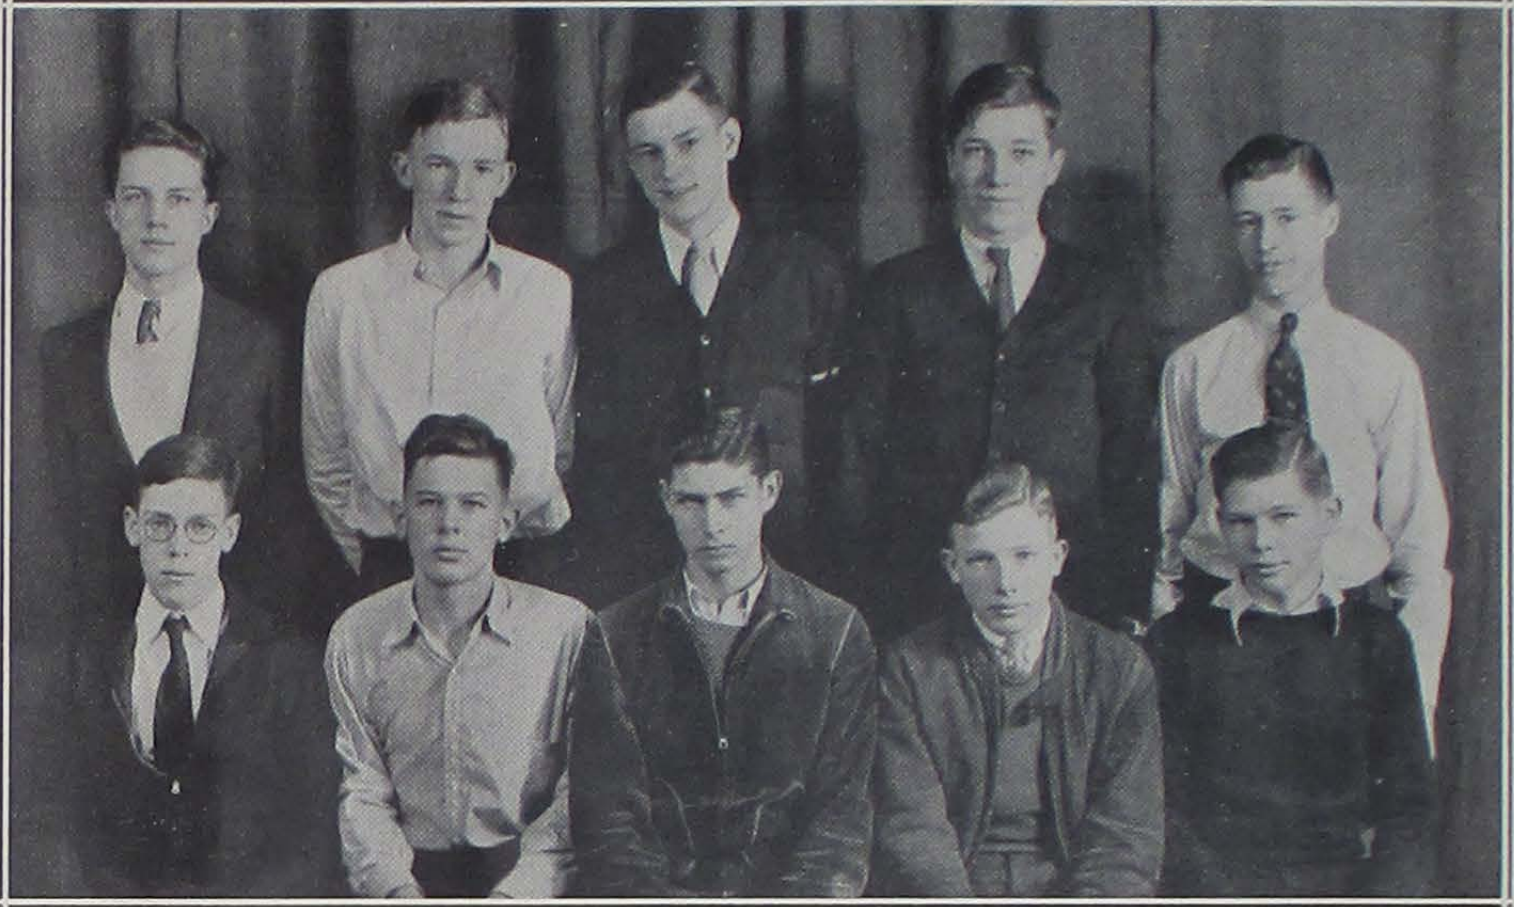

Due to the nature of the organization, membership is highly prized, and only boys who have won one major or two minor awards in the field of interscholastic athletics are eligible.

The aim of the club is to uphold athletics, create better feeling between athletes and the student body, and to further a more intensive athletic program for boys who do not participate in interscholastic games.

The club annually provides "A" Club certificates for senior members and the "A" pin which is given to the best all-around student in Ames High. This year the club realized many of its aims, sponsoring a free throw contest, providing a trophy for the intramural contests, and hopes that future members will uphold their high ideals.

Athletic Managers

THE athletic managers are divided into two groups—the trainers, and the boys who help with the financial part of the athletic program.

The trainers check out clothes, keep attendance and weight charts, doctor injuries, carry water, sympathize or congratulate as the case may be. There are usually two for football and two for basketball, and one trainer is taken on each athletic trip. In this way he feels repaid for his work.

The second group takes tickets at the games and needs a lot of self-control and tact to do it successfully. Both groups take a great deal of criticism and do many thankless tasks, but, if they "can take it," they are awarded with manager emblems at the end of the season.

Second Team Football

THE Ames High Second Team had a very successful season this year, upholding the fine record of the Ames Seconds. For the past few years Ames has had one of the most powerful second teams in the state.

In order to develop material for varsity football, a second team was first organized in Ames High School by Coach Campbell in 1927. Actual experience in second team games is invaluable in preparing the boys for first team competition.

The best prospects for making the first squad next year are Maurice Cox, Jack Smith, William Winton, Lawrence Owens, John Hostetter, and Marion Gardner, although more boys will undoubtedly make the grade.

1933-34 Basketball

THE conference basketball season of 1933-34 was a rather mediocre one, characterized by in and out playing on the part of the Ames High quintet. The team went into a bad slump in midseason and failed to pull itself from the mire before the regular season ended. However, in the sectional and district tournaments Ames made a very creditable showing.

Starting the season with four victories gave indication of good material. The season's first set-back was at Marshalltown where Ames dropped a hotly contested battle to Marshalltown in an overtime period. However, the Orange and Black came back to wrest a victory from the powerful Oskaloosa aggregation. Losing to Newton, Grinnell, Boone, and Marshalltown marked the low ebb of the season. The Little Cyclones gained a bit of glory by again defeating the Oskaloosa quintet. Following this was the defeat at the hands of Newton in the closest game of the year. In the last two games of the regular season, the Ames High cagers met defeat at the hands of Roosevelt and Grinnell respectively.

At the county tournament Ames captured class A honors by defeating Collins in the first round, and Nevada in the finals. At Boone, in the sectional tournament, the Ames team gained victories over Boone, Grand Junction, and Madrid, which made them sectional champions. In the district tournament Ames beat Chariton and Adel, but lost to Roosevelt High of Des Moines in the finals. Thus ended our basketball season, in which Ames progressed further in state competition than ever before.

Intramural Athletics

UNDER the able supervision of L. V. Loy, the 1933--34 intramural athletic program experienced a successful year, having for its aim participation in sports for all students, with emphasis on sports which will always prove practical recreation.

Badminton was played during the fall season and the winter season consisted of ping pong and basketball tournaments.

At the close of the ping pong intramural tourney, the six high teams were chosen to play a final tournament. The victors were Room 102-Z and 5.

The basketball tournament was divided into a sophomore, junior, and senior league. At the end of the season of keen competition, the two highest teams in each league participated in a final round robin. As a result of this tournament Room 3, a junior team, and Room 204, a senior team, were tied for first place. In the final playoff Room 204 came forth victorious.

A soft ball series in the American and National leagues, with a playoff between the league champions at the close of the series was one of the events in the spring intramural program. Tennis and track were also electives for participation.

PRESIDENT	BETH CUMMINGS
VICE PRESIDENT	BERNICE VAN SCOY
SECRETARY-TREASURER	MAURINE PARK
SOCIAL CHAIRMAN	JANET MELHUS
POINT RECORDERS	HELEN BEARD, PATRICIA BRUCE

THE letters G. A. A. stand for the Girls' Athletic Association. It is open to all girls in high school who are interested in sports. This year the Ames organization has joined the Iowa Girls' Athletic Association. Each year G. A. A. sponsors tournaments in volleyball, basketball and baseball between the classes.

The awards given are an A for 500 points, a major A for 1,000 points, and a pillow top for those who continue to earn points after having won a major A. To earn the awards the girl must keep a health chart. The main requirements of the health charts are: nine hours of sleep, at least one-half hour of exercise a day, three good wholesome meals, a bath or shower every day, and no eating between meals. The points are won in various ways. Being on a team or manager of it earns several points. Every hour of exercise such as hiking, swimming, tennis or golf earns two points. It is indeed an honor to receive an A, and the major A and pillow top show exceptional merit.

Glass Basketball

THE annual class basketball tournament was held during the latter part of February. This year, as in the past, the contests were received with a great deal of enthusiasm and good sportsmanship, and all the games were exceptionally well played.

Competition was decidedly keen in all three classes. In the first game the seniors defeated the sophomores. The juniors then defeated the sophomores. Perhaps the most exciting game of the tournament was the final contest between the seniors and juniors.

There is excellent material in the sophomore class and they will afford much competition in the future years.

The results of the games were as follows:

Seniors	51	Sophomores	24
Juniors	29	Sophomores	19
Seniors	30	Juniors	24

Glass Volleyball

THE girls opened their season with the inter-class volleyball tournament. The exciting games aroused much enthusiasm.

In the first contest the seniors were victorious over the sophomores.

The sophomores were again beaten, in the second game, by the juniors.

The seniors proved themselves champions by defeating the juniors in the final game of the season.

Results

Senior	49	Sophomore	29
Junior	49	Sophomore	27
Senior	34	Junior	30

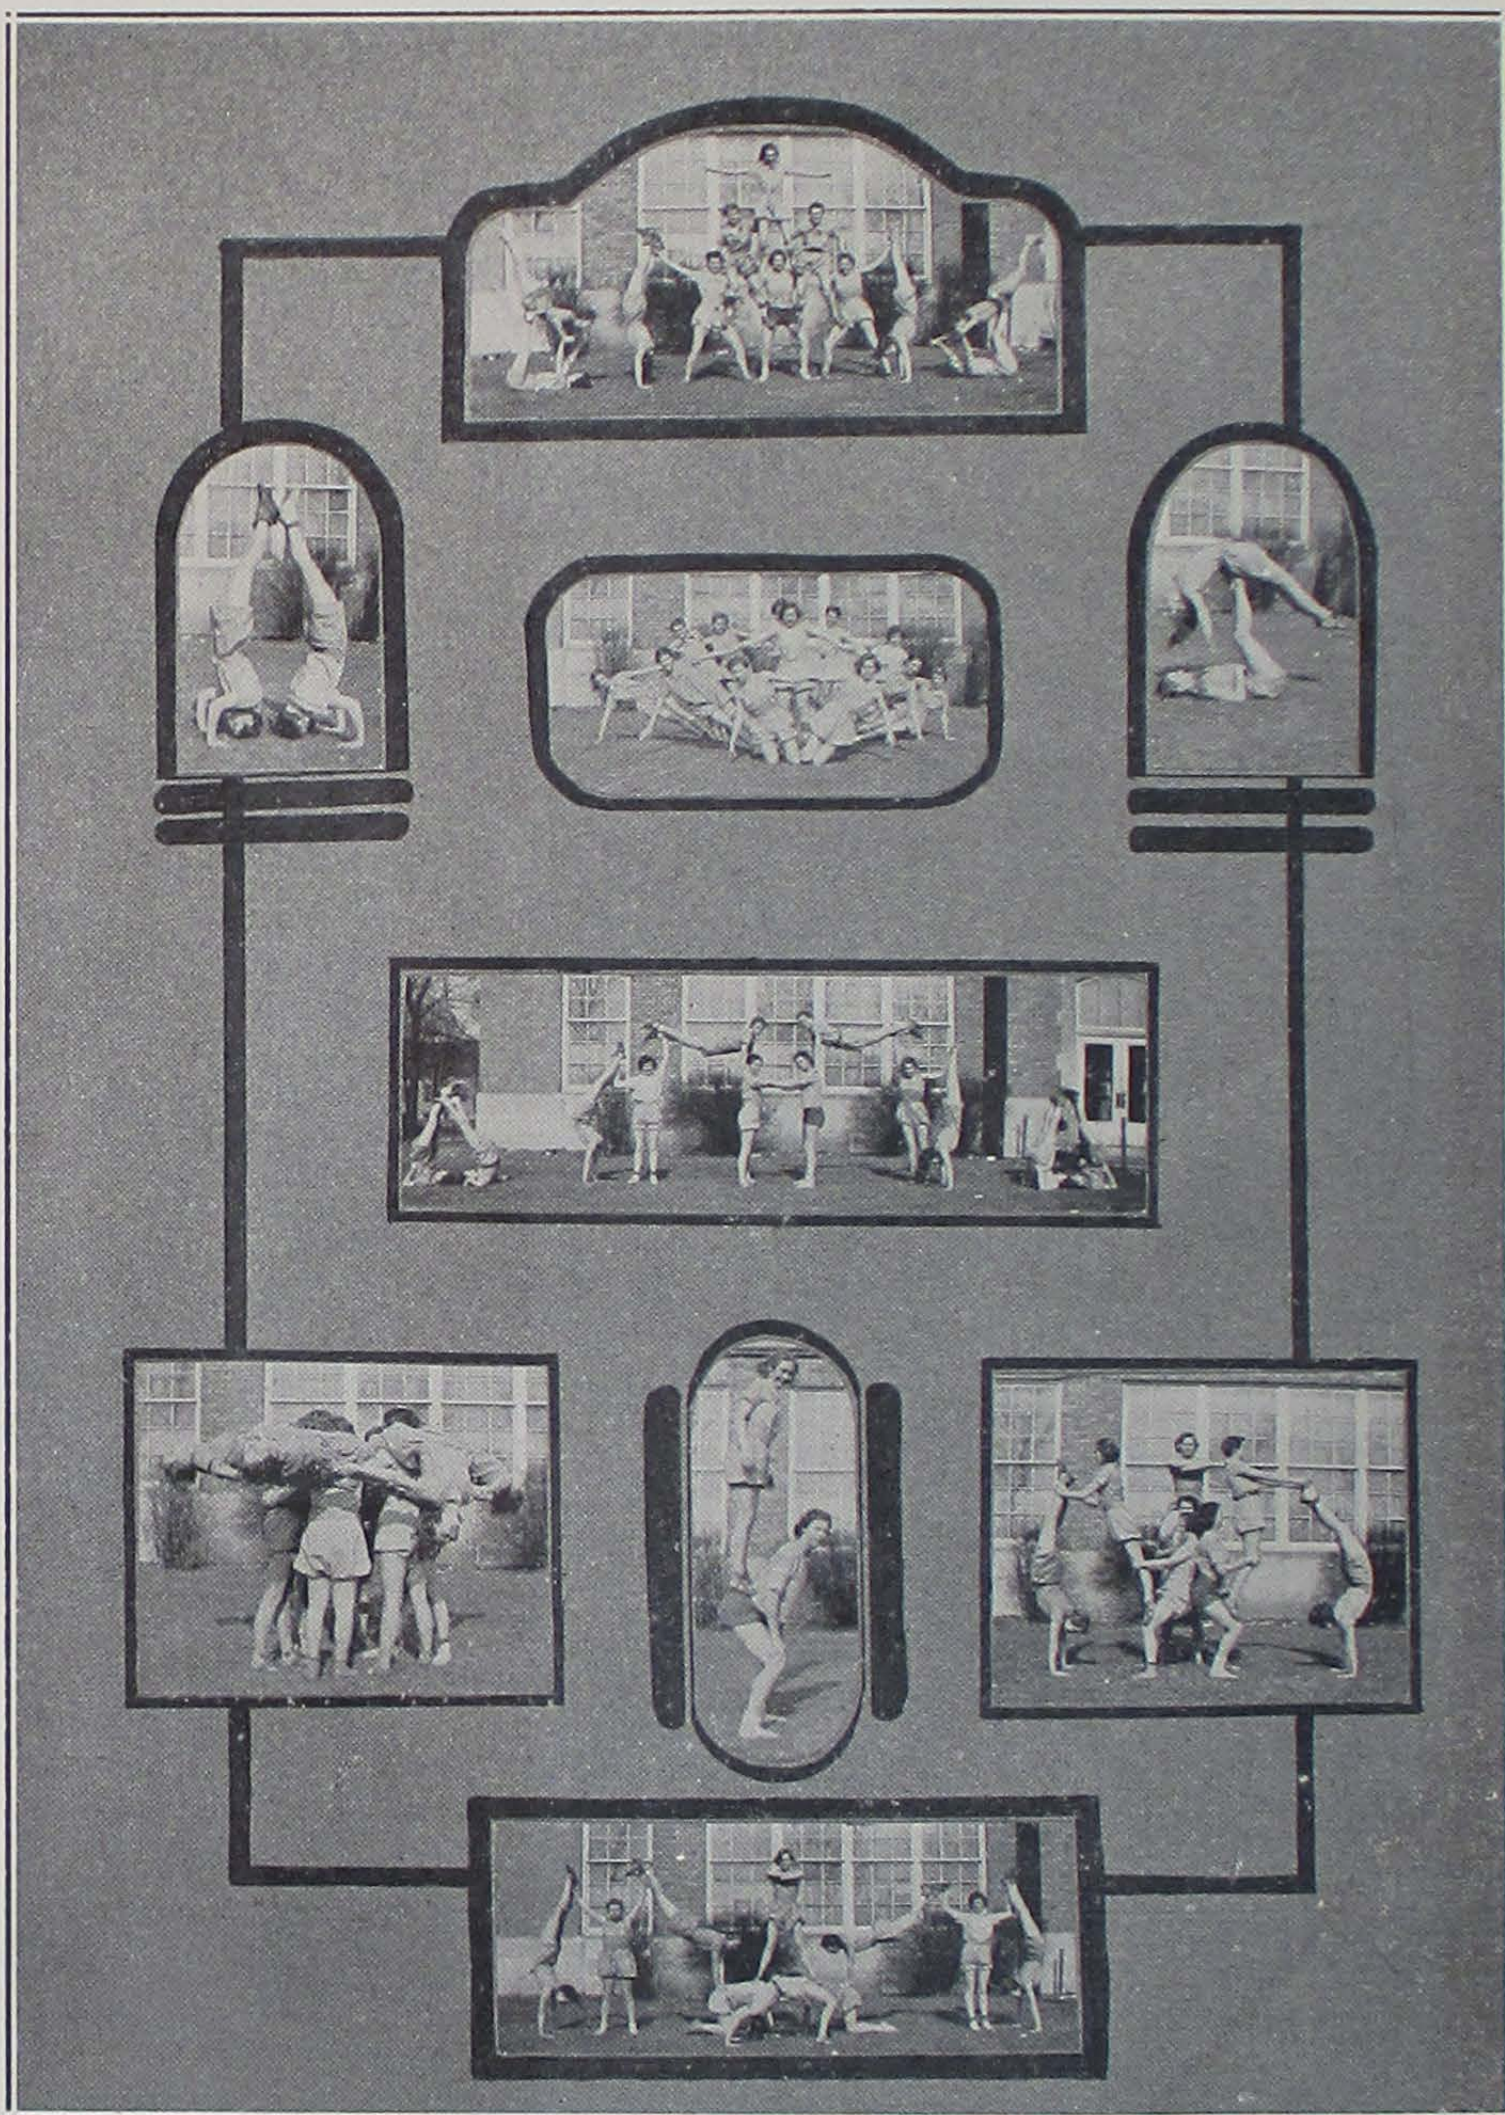

Intramural Volleyball

The girls' physical education classes this year had a volleyball tournament.

After elimination by contests within each class, games were played between each winning team. At the close of the tournament, the "Scorpions" proved champions and the "Fighting Irish" were runners-up.

BON VOYAGE!

National Scholastic Press Convention

FOR the first time in the history of Ames High School a delegation was sent to represent it at a National Scholastic Press Association Convention held in Chicago, Illinois. Five student journalism leaders along with the two publication advisors entrained for the convention on October 12, 1933, for a stay of two days.

Many leaders in the field of journalism either spoke or led round table discussions. Among these were H. F. Harrington, director of the Medill School of Journalism, Northwestern University, and Llewellyn Jones, editorial writer, Chicago Herald and Examiner.

Several points of interest in the loop of Chicago were visited by the students in their stay. The last afternoon and evening were spent at the World's Fair.

Those who made the trip were Beth Cummings, George Arnold, Miriam Richardson, Richard Olsan, Charles Reynolds, and the two publication advisors, Miss Grace Curtis and John Harms.

Homecoming

PEP — a parade — the big game — and a banquet, but this is only the outline of Homecoming. The details were provided by the students and alumni who opened the festivities with a pep meeting, bonfire, and parade on Friday evening. Another detail, but a big one, was supplied by the football team which registered a 7-0 victory over Oskaloosa the next afternoon.

After the game came the banquet—and it was a fitting celebration with which to climax the annual holiday.

ROBERT RICHEY

Iowa State Press Convention

ONE of the most interesting interscholastic meetings of the year was the Iowa High School Press Convention, held in Des Moines, on November 17 and 18, 1933.

George Arnold, editor of the Web, won first place in the advertising soliciting contest, securing a high rating for Ames High, in addition to an attractive trophy. The contest was one of six to determine the outstanding students in each phase of journalism.

Among the interesting highlights of the two-day convention were a banquet and dance, many round table discussions, and several tours of places of interest in Des Moines.

Those who attended from Ames were George Arnold, Jeanne Acklin, Robert Duckworth, Paul Duitch, Jean Keffer, Robert Bliss, Virginia Gilchrist, Mary Ellen Lynch, Miriam Richardson, Marguerite Knudson, Philip Norman, Charles Vilbrandt, and Miss Grace Curtis, journalism instructor in Ames High.

PAUL DUITCH

Girl Reserve Conference

ON December 9, a large number of girls from Ames High attended the Sub-area Girl Reserve Conference at Boone. After the opening services, the delegates were conducted through several places of interest in Boone. Lunch was welcome after the last trip which was through a coal mine. The afternoon was given over to discussions and an initiation service presented by the Ames girls. A lovely tea concluded the conference.

The Des Moines Area Conference was held February 17 at Des Moines with eighty-three Ames delegates attending. The morning discussions and forums on vocations open to girls were followed by lunch and a visit through the Smouse Opportunity School. The representatives returned to the Y. W. C. A. and held a sing and review of the morning's discussions. This conference was brought to a close by a tea.

Iowa State Older Boys' Conference

THE twenty-seventh annual State Older Boys' Conference was held this year in Cedar Rapids, December 1, 2, 3. This conference is held under the direction of the State Y. M. C. A., Des Moines, Iowa. The Ames Hi-Y was well represented by a group of sixteen delegates headed by Paul Jones, president, and Ray Donels, sponsor of the Ames club.

The speaker of the conference was the Rev. Rolland W. Schloerb, pastor of Hyde Park Baptist Church, Chicago University. Rev. Mr. Schloerb gave four addresses during the conference. The main theme of these addresses was "The Call of the New World."

There were three discussion groups open to all delegates. The first, led by Mrs. Mildred Morgan of the University of Iowa, had for its topic "Boy and Girl Relationships." The second, under the direction of Roy Sorenson, secretary of the National Council of the Y. M. C. A., had for its theme, "How to Better the Hi-Y Club." The third, led by Dr. C. H. McCloy, of the University of Iowa, discussed "Sports and Sportsmanship."

The entire Ames delegation thoroughly enjoyed the conference and many expressed themselves as being genuinely benefitted by the addresses and discussion groups. The general opinion after the Conference ended was that it had been a success, and it is hoped that future conferences will be equally beneficial.

The Holiday Hop

THE first all-school evening dance ever held at Ames High was given at the field house, December 16. The roof of the field house was covered by green and red streamers tied to a ring in the center and then to beams at the edges. A fire place with two huge stockings made things seem even more Christmasy.

Many games and a ping-pong tournament progressed while dancing went on on the main floor.

The committee had provided various things to make the evening more successful. Confetti flew everywhere and sifted through people's hair and down their backs. Serpentine wound around persons' necks and balloons popping lent additional merriment.

The climax to all this fun was the lowering of the ring in the center, thus letting all the streamers down among the dancers.

Girl Reserve - Hi-Y Friendship Conference

THE annual Friendship Conference began this year on February twentieth. The Reverend Nightingale, Methodist minister of Valley Junction, and at one time a missionary in the far north, addressed the student body at three general assemblies and conducted class forums following each. On Thursday evening he gave his final talk at a meeting of parents, discussing "The Passing of the Woodshed."

President Hughes of Iowa State College was the speaker at the regular assembly on Friday, and in the afternoon of the same day a colonial tea was held for all Girl Reserves and their mothers.

The conference was drawn to a close by a vesper service on Sunday, at which time the Reverend A. W. Stolen, of the Lutheran Church, spoke.

The District Music Contest

THE North Central District Music Contest was held at Ames, April 6 and 7. Fifteen hundred students from schools all over this district flocked over Iowa State campus for these two days.

Ames was represented by Boys' and Girls' Glee Clubs, Mixed Chorus, two solos, Concert Band, and a String Quartette.

The results were particularly satisfying. Ames again proved its worth as a school—small but able by winning the following ratings:

Elsie Siemers—soprano solo	Excellent
Howard Carter—tenor solo	Superior
Girls' Glee Club	Superior
Boys' Glee Club	Superior
Mixed Chorus	Superior
Concert Band	Superior
String Quartette	Excellent

The groups who participated were coached by Miss Edna Bower and Mr. Richard Day, and they owe their success largely to these capable coaches.

The Storm

JOHN EDWARD VANDERLINDEN

The hot, dark air is full of darkness;
Not one thin beam may pierce the inky void;
The still foreboding skies oppress the earth with silence.
I think and dream of deeds long dead:
From out the musty past strange memories crowd,
I see, I hear, I do things long forgotten,
Lonely and fearful, I watch.

Through madly swaying tree-tops, groaning,
The charges of Aeolous, wild, unbound,
Foretell the dreaded coming of their kinsman, storm.
I cannot help but listen to their moanings
Echoing airily 'cross the flats beyond;
These ghostly friends and comforts are my comrades in the storm,
Lonely and fearful, I watch.

The distant lightning, ushered in by roaring thunder
Lights up the sky for one short and golden second,
Then, its power spent, is gone.
A few drops fall and spatter on the grasses.
Suddenly the angry clouds lose torrents on the scene below,
Lonely and fearful, I watch.

Ere long the moon shines clear and bright,
Betrays the empty, fleeing clouds;
Her mellow beam, more powerful than the blast
Sooths and heals the wounds inflicted
By the fast receding rage.
A whippoorwill calls gladly from her ledge, while
No longer lonely, no longer fearful, I rest.

Ballad of an Ancient Truth

"If all the tears since time began
That womankind has shed for man
Were gathered into one great sea
Gosh, what a tidal wave there'd be!

"T'would drown the women one and all;
They'd sink in salt beyond recall!
The men would somehow keep afloat
Each in a dinky little boat.

"With shirts for sails and arms for oars
They'd paddle off for other shores.
And land unhurt serene and brave
And cause another tidal wave!"

School Daze

JANE HELSER

Oh, Monday is a horrid day.
It starts a week of study.
It ends the week-end and it brings
The blues to everybody.

Now Tuesday isn't quite so bad,
With Chorus and Dramatics.
But if the grind won't let up soon,
We'll all be school fanatics.

So now, let's take up Wednesday,
Like Monday, it is bad,
Except it's nearer Friday,
For that thing I am glad.

Well, Thursday is the next best.
I'm over feeling blue.
For it will soon be week-end,
With lots of things to do.

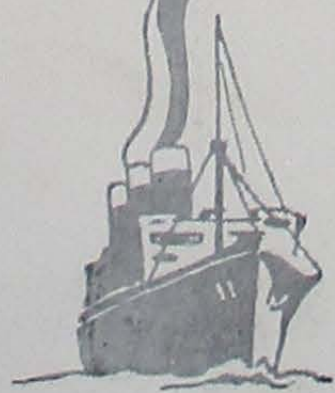

And finally it is Friday,
That blessed happy day,
On Saturday there'll be no school,
Just play, and play, and play.

Girls' Ten Commandments

1. When invited to partake of a sandwich never order a whole meal.
2. Never call a boy "cute" to his face. For some reason boys never seem to like the word.
3. Never talk about the "swell time" you had the night before or expect to have the night after. It doesn't interest the boys in the least.
4. Don't keep your escort waiting too long. There is a limit to all patience, no matter how much he loves you.
5. If your partner dances abominably bear with him; he wants to learn. Suggest that you sit that one out.
6. If your boy friend has straight hair never remark how much curls thrill you. It freezes him.
7. Always use indelible lipstick. It saves worry and embarrassment.
8. If you're riding in a Model T, and a Cadillac roadster passes you, all comments will fall on unheeding ears.
9. Never hint for a fraternity pin, class ring, or the like. If he wants you to have it, he'll give it to you.
10. Avoid flirting any more than necessary. One fellow at a time should be sufficient.

Boys' Ten Commandments

1. If you take a girl to a dance and she is "cut" often, cut back; you paid for her ticket.
2. Never hand girls a "line"; they see through it, so watch out or they'll hand you one back.
3. If your girl looks nice, tell her so. Why keep it to yourself?
4. Don't be afraid to ask a girl to go out. The most she can do is say, "No."
5. Don't palm your sister off on any of your boy friends "sight unseen," if you value their friendship.
6. Try being gentle. Girls love it. Remember a wave costs a dollar, and ought to last for 2 or 3 dates.
7. When at a party kindly refrain from throwing candy, peanuts, "gedunked" napkins. It not only ruins the rugs but also the girls' sweet dispositions.
8. Try looking respectable in school as well as on dates. It will be appreciated.
9. Candy and hamburgers tend to increase weight; bring flowers.
10. Never tell your girl friend that another member of the fair sex is good-looking. She'll think you have bad taste.

SPRING ARITHMETIC

It was the busy hour of 4,
When from a city hardware store,
Emerged a gentleman who bore

1 hoe,
1 spade,
1 wheelbarrow.

From thence our hero promptly went
Into a seed establishment,
And for these things his money spent:

1 peck of bulbs,
1 job lot of shrubs,
1 quart of assorted seeds.

He has a garden under way
And if he's fairly lucky, say,
He'll have about the last of May

1 squash vine,
1 egg plant,
1 radish.

Isn't it funny? A ruse is a blind, a blind is a shade, a shade is a shadow, a shadow is a ghost, a ghost is a shade, a shade is a color, a color is paint, and paint is rouge. Therefore, by Euclid, axiom one: rouge must be a ruse—and curiously enough, it is true.

The Class of 1934

There was a youth who loved a maid,
His name was Alexander;
He wanted her to marry him,
A ring did Alex hand her.

So later they were truly wed.
And when folks the paper read,
Referring to the twain they said,
"Why there goes Alex and her."

Hopefully we embark,—ship of life,—
 From this peaceful haven into seas of care and strife,
 On waves that rise, on waves that fall,
 On sands of time our names to inscrawl,
 We needn't fear our voyage to sea
 If the crew be The Captain, and you, and me.
